Marc Alvienth T. Hernandez

I like this tree. This tree is in front of our boarding house. Although this tree is not the most fruitful tree, and even though most of its leaves have died, it still stands strong and protects us from shade. There are some trash beneath the tree, some biodegradable, some not, yet it still pushes on, no matter the circumstances.

This activity helped me appreciate the trees around us a bit more. Often they are easily forgotten, but this does not diminish their value. Trees help people in a lot of ways, they give us oxygen, they provide food and shade. Without them, living would be harder. That's why we should appreciate them more. Take care of them more. Be more mindful of them, because they have, and will continue to be there for us, unless we continue with how we are treating them now. So let's give them a bit more though, a bit more effort. That is all. Thank you. The end. Salamat po.

🧑